ASSERTED HIS INNOCENCE.

Oldest Prisoner in State Prison Died Yesterday of Old Age.

Windsor, Sept. 28.—A. G. Cram, the oldest inmate of the state prison at this place, died yesterday of senile decay, aged 79 years. Cram was sentenced from Orleans county in October, 1894, for life, having been convicted on the charge of manslaughter. At the time sentence was pronounced he asserted his innocence and ever since that time he maintained that he was not guilty. During his eleven years in prison he was a model prisoner, not having had a mark against his name.

AUTHORITIES INTERFERED.

Willie-Ruhlin Fight Had to Be Called Off.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 28.—The John Willie-Gus Ruhlin fight advertised to take place here last night, was called off, County Attorney Christensen having issued an order prohibiting the bout.

As to Wigs.

The Lobby Man tried on a toupee—believe that's the word—and took a look at himself in the mirror. His own mother wouldn't have known him, and would have been ashamed to acknowledge it if she had. "Yes, wigs or parts of wigs make a great difference in a man," said Mr. Frank A. Scott, of New York, at the Rennet. "And wigs come high. Now take this rich piece, set on the finest gauze—it isn't so big, and there isn't such a lot of material to it, but the workmanship and finish make it cost $40. All wigs are, of course, made of natural hair. Where does it come from? Well, we get some from barbers, but they are not top price. Then, much of the hair comes from bodies, and our cheapest, coarsest grade is obtained in China—this stiff, black hair. Every bit of hair used in the construction of a wig is thoroughly washed, cleansed in every part by the most certain antiseptic methods, and rendered as pure as it is possible for anything to be. All wigs are now made on an especially prepared tough gauze. In the case of toupees, intended to cover only a small bald spot, the wig is fastened on with wax on the edges of the gauze, but where the whole head is to be fitted it is possible to make a wig so perfect in proportions that it will fit on itself and will not come off without an effort. In this age, with the general tendency to baldness, there is naturally an increased demand for toupees, although among some the bald head is regarded as a badge of honor and distinction. The most common cause of baldness, I think, is the fact that men wear such heavy and close fitting hats, and so constantly. No child of mine would be permitted to ever wear a cap, and mothers would be wise to keep their children in ignorance of what a hat even means up to their 7th or 8th year, and then permit them to wear headgear only when it cannot be avoided. If you are already bald you will find that a wig will make you practically immune from colds. Yes, in the summer a wig's a hot proposition, but then every rose must have its little thorn."—Baltimore News.
